

tesol

— QUARTERLY —

VOLUME 58 | NUMBER 3 | SEPTEMBER 2024

tesol international association

CURRENT ISSUE
NOT TO BE BORROWED

CONTENTS

EDITORIAL

New Theoretical and Practical Horizons in Data-driven Learning: Introduction to the Special Issue 1027

J. Elliott Casal, and Matt Kessler

ARTICLE

Walking the Walk? (Mis)alignment of EFL Teachers' Self-Reported Corpus Literacy Skills and Their Competence in Planning and Implementing Corpus-Based Language Pedagogy 1046
Tieu Thuy Chung, Peter Crosthwaite, Cam Thi Hong Cao, and Carolina Tavares de Carvalho

Data-Driven Learning for Pronunciation: Perception and Production of Lexical Stress and Prominence in Academic English 1081

Kevin Hirschi, and Okim Kang

Exploring the Effect of Corpus-Based Writing Instruction on Learner-Corpus Interaction in L2 Revision: A Study of Chinese EFL Disciplinary Writers 1108

Xixin Qiu

Learners' Perceived Development of Spoken Grammar Awareness after Corpus-Informed Instruction: An Exploration of Learner Diaries 1138

Christian Jones, and David Oakey

BRIEF REPORT

Learner Corpora in Corpus-Informed Instruction: Moving Toward an Asset- and Genre-Based Model 1166

Shelley Staples, Anh Dang, and Hui Wang

INVITED RESEARCH ISSUES

Corpora in English Language Teacher Education: Research, Integration, and Resources 1181

Fiona Farr, and Agnieszka Leńko-Szymańska

Expanding Methodological Approaches in DDL Research 1193

Alex Boulton, and Nina Vyatkina

INVITED TEACHING ISSUES

Benefits and Challenges of Using Do-it-yourself Corpora for Academic Writing Development 1205

Maggie Charles

Corpora, Locally Sourced: An Approach to Addressing the Specific Needs of ESL Writing Programs 1215

Joseph J. Lee